Steve Studenmund, Planning Manager Metro Parks:

Mr. Studenmund gave a presentation about the newest Metro Park to join their facilities, which will be in our area, named Great Southern Metro Park. A map and artists renderings were presented to the area commissioners and the public. This park is approximately 60 acres in size and run from the inside of the 270 loop, behind the Great Southern Shopping Center and will run all the way up to and include the site of the former Heer Park. The park will be located between these areas and the neighboring quarry properties and the Scioto River. Connections are planned with the Scioto Greenway Trail and the Audubon Metro Park. This park will be dog friendly and have waterfront access possibly. Several employees of Metro Parks gave additional presentations and answered commission and community questions. Metro Parks will be back every 6 months to discuss progress.

Rosalee Hendon and Tina Mohn-City of Columbus Recreation & Parks:

Rosalee Hendon gave updates on a couple of parks within our area commission boundaries. Heer Park is still officially closed and will be redeveloped in coordination with Metro Parks. Stockbridge Park- The city now owns 11 acres approximately. The old school building was demolished, and seeding will be occurring and tree planting of about 2400 trees will be occurring this fall. The asphalt trail has been completed. Three Creeks Park- The house in the park and the barn will be demolished in early 2023. The historic buildings will stay. The sycamore fields playground equipment will be replaced end of next year with accessible playground equipment. The farmland at Three Creeks Park is currently unleased, so a grant application is being submitted to restore the wetlands. Further details will come at a later date. A discussion was held about a walkthrough on the interior and exterior of Marion Franklin Recreation Center, outdoor plantings, shelters and other amenities. A future meeting was planned.

Vice-Chair Commissioner Eubanks gave the floor to Commissioner Walker, Zoning Co-Chair.

The number of apartments is being reduced to 200 units from 300 units. Also, the breakdown of the number of and various affordability percentages has changed, with the final approval of those figures to be determined by the Ohio Housing Finance Agency in the near future. The applicant is still in discussions with COTA about the concerns about the bus stop/bus access issues. No other zoning business.

Presentation by Deputy Director Anthony Celebrezze, City of Columbus Building and Zoning Services

Deputy Director Celebrezze discussed the process that the city is going through for the rewrite of the zoning code for the city. The current zoning code was written in the 1950's. A consultant (Lisa Wise and Associates) has been hired and is working with the city on this major re-write. RAMA Communications is also participating in this process. Communication with civic groups/area commissions and citizens is they key reason that other cities that have done this process have failed or had a bad outcome nationwide. Columbus is going to have involvement of all of these organizations throughout the process. The director noted that the Far South is different that the southside which is different than downtown and the zoning code needs to reflect that, including walkability, transit and car use. Urban vs. surburban style planning and layout. Transit corridors will be 1st in this rewrite, then the individual neighborhoods will be 2nd. Timeline-transit corridors January 2023-January 2024, then pivot to neighborhood areas. A question and answer period followed.
